Republicans Join Drive

Test Ban Gathers New Supporters

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bipartisan drive in the Senate to ratify the limited nuclear test-ban treaty has gathered momentum.

President Kennedy is planning to try to help it along with a letter to the Senate, perhaps Wednesday.

The letter is intended, according to Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, to "dispel doubt and resolve some of the apprehensions and misgivings."

Dirksen added his weight to the ratification drive Monday. After a meeting with Kennedy and Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Dirksen said he will use Kennedy's letter as the basis for a Senate speech urging ratification without reservations.

Formal debate on the treaty got under way Tuesday.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, appealed for ratification of the treaty to help the world "break out of the fatal cycle of fear and armaments and greater fear and finally war."

The bipartisan note was stressed from the start of debate when Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, R-Mass., a member of the Preparedness subcommittee—a center of opposition to the treaty—followed Fulbright to voice his own strong support.

Saltonstall said the treaty, in substance, is similar to that offered the Russians by President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1950 and by Kennedy in 1962.

Dirksen said a demand by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., for a reservation postponing the effectiveness of the treaty until the Soviet Union withdraws its troops and weapons from Cuba was discussed at the White House meeting.

"I could not go along with Barry's proposal," Dirksen told newsmen. "To me, it would be a confession of weakness. It would be saying, 'We can't deal with Castro, therefore we'll get Uncle Nikita to deal with him.'"

73 Senators Endorse Ratification Of Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP)—Seventy-three of the Senate's 100 members either are committed to or are inclined now to vote for ratification of the limited nuclear test-ban treaty, an Associated Press survey showed today.

But 27 senators either are opposed to approval or have grave reservations about a treaty that would ban all but underground testing. Of this group 12 have either announced their opposition or have voted in committee against the treaty. Fifteen are listed as doubtful.

If this lineup held, the treaty, on which the Senate resumes debate today, would be ratified by a comfortable but not an internationally impressive margin. If all 100 senators voted, ratification would require 67 affirmative votes.

Outright opposition to ratification has come from eight Southern Democrats and three Western and a Texas Republican.

Campaign Set On Wellsville School Levies

Substitute Teacher List Approved At Meeting Of Board

The Wellsville Board of Education Monday night discussed plans for a campaign for renewal of operating levies at the November election, approved a list of substitute teachers and established a new policy on their salary.

Seventeen were approved for substitute teaching. They are Mrs. Rhea Brown, Miss Isa Anderson, Mrs. Sandra Baker, Ford Ball, Mrs. Edna Brown, Mrs. Carol Chaffee, Mrs. Marjorie Dyserl, Mrs. Evelyn Fraser, Mrs. Marjorie Fraser, Miss Alda Fowler, Miss Margaret Frischkorn, Edgar John, Mrs. Ruth McCoy, Mrs. Ann McMillan, Mrs. Margaret Shoub, Miss Cora Wickline and Mrs. Gladys Kozora.

Substitutes are paid $15 a day. Russell Dyserl, board member, suggested that they be paid according to the regular teachers schedule if they serve for an extended period. The board then agreed and established as policy that any substitute who serves in the same classroom for a period of 10 consecutive school days thereafter will be paid according

Curb Meters Renovation Will Be Aired

A report on the revamping of the city's parking meter system and installation of approximately 100 new meters will be discussed by Council at a caucus meeting next Monday night, Councilman Floyd Murray, chairman of the planning commission, reported last night.

Murray made his announcement after Council met in caucus with James Caye, sales representative of the Koontz Equipment Corp. of Pittsburgh and Safety-Service Director Robert Owen to hear the Pittsburgh firm's proposal reiterated.

Murray asked Council to act as a committee of the whole to consider the proposals. Another Pittsburgh concern, the Dual Parking Meter Co., submitted a survey in mid-June proposing 588 new meters.

The planning committee chairman said Council was told 442 new meters are needed, includ-

Free School Buses Asked For Midcrest

Midland Board Gets Petitions Of 350 In Transportation Bid

Entirely free bus transportation for Midcrest public school children was asked of the Midland Board of Education Monday night by a group of 30 persons from the residential area who presented petitions they said contain 350 names.

The delegation pointed out that although the schools provide two-thirds of the cost of bus transportation, many parents in the area cannot afford the extra cost of the tickets.

Consequently, 30 to 50 children are walking the dangerous Route 168, between Midland Heights and 3rd St.

James Morrison, president, pointed out total cost of the buses are not reimbursed by the state, and that by law the board is not required to pay any of the transportation expense.

Michael Raich, board member, noted that should the board approve the committee's request, the increased cost wouldn't be one third, but $10,000 due to increased use by those who do not now ride the buses. This would raise the cost to about $16,000, compared to the present $6,000.

Morrison promised, however, that a committee consisting of Raich, John F. Shovlin, Maurice Newman and Edward P. Gill will meet with representatives of the petitioners to discuss the situation and seek a solution.

Another group asked the board about the class distribution of students in the high school. Principal William Walters said that at the beginning of the year, aft-

Man In City Burglary Sentenced To Prison

John Cieselski, 31, of Pittsburgh was sentenced to concurrent terms of 1-15 and 2-15 years in the State Penitentiary Monday by Common Pleas Court Judge Raymond S. Buzzard for the 1960 burglary of the Peoples Drugstore in which a quantity of narcotics was taken.

He received the first sentence for burglary and the second with a fine of $250 for the drugs theft June 19 three years ago. He was convicted on the two counts in a trial June 30. He was indicted by the September Grand Jury in 1960 but trial was delayed because he was committed to a Pennsylvania prison for a crime in Pittsburgh while out on bond for the city burglary.

He asked dismissal of the indictments because "he was not tried within three terms of court" but the judge denied the motion.

Sunday Law Tossed Out With Ruling

High Court Claims West Virginia Act Not Legally Passed

CHARLESTON (AP) — The Supreme Court unanimously threw out today the 1963 Sunday Closing Law because it was passed after the constitutional adjournment date of the Legislature at midnight March 9.

The opinion was prepared by Judge Harlan Calhoun. The effect of the ruling was to leave on the books a somewhat less stringent Sunday closing law in effect for several years.

The court said the 1963 session of the Legislature expired by the passage of time and operation of law at midnight of its 60th day, which was last March 9.

From that time, the court ruled, it ceased to have legislative power. The opinion said the Blue Law was finally voted on in the House after the midnight deadline, and thus never actually became law.

Because of the constitutional deadline situation, the court said it was not called upon to rule on other constitutional points raised in arguments in the case before.

The Blue Law question reached the court on a petition by Heck's Discount Centers, Inc., and Pic-Way Shoes of West Virginia, Inc., after they were indicted in Cabell County June 10 for opening for business on Sunday.

The two discount chains asked the Supreme Court to prohibit Cabell County Common Pleas Judge Ernest Winters and Prosecutor Russell Dunbar from trying them on the indictment because of the alleged unconstitutionality of the 1963 act.

School Clocks Stay On DST

The Wellsville Board of Education Monday night, over the dissenting votes of two members, decided to operate the school system on Daylight Saving Time until Oct. 27.

In the past, the board had always reverted to Eastern Standard Time at the end of September. This was done so the rural students would not have to stand along the highways in the early-morning fog waiting for school buses.

The city will also operate on DST until the last Sunday in October. When the matter was presented for discussion Earl Bake and Richard Grills, members, said they had not changed their minds since last year. Bake favors ending fast time at the end of September and Grills favors continuing it for the additional month.

Russell Dyserl, another member, said he still feels the system should end fast time earlier but yielded and made the motion to continue until the end of October. Grills seconded the motion. Bake and Charles Glass opposed the move while Dyserl, Grills and William Ferrall, board president, voted for it.

It was suggested that perhaps the parents should be polled as to their opinion. Ferrall said that everyone he had talked to, parents, coaches and teachers, all want to remain on the same time as the city.

Most Eastern States began DST in April and some switch back to Eastern Standard Time Sept. 25 with the majority remaining under the "fast" time until Oct. 27.

Jury Seated For Boy Who Killed Father

Testimony Begins In Beaver Trial Of Walter Hlista Jr.

BEAVER — Testimony began today in the trial of Walter Hlista Jr., who confessed to killing his father but pleaded "not guilty" after a jury of 10 women and two men was seated Monday in Beaver County Court before Judge Robert E. McCreary.

Hlista Jr., 19, is accused in the shooting of his father, Walter Sr., 44, Harmony township police chief, at the family home last Feb. 28.

In opening remarks to the jury yesterday, Dist. Atty. Richard Steward said a companion of young Hlista quoted the defendant as saying a month before the shooting that "he wanted to shoot his father."

Steward quoted Charles McClellan of Economy as saying, "He (Hlista Jr.) told me sometimes he just feels like shooting his dad, and shooting, and shooting and shooting."

Earlier, Steward said Hlista admitted the shooting, saying he took "as much as he could."

Young Hlista, who pleaded innocent to the murder charge, appeared calm as the charge was read by Kathleen W. Evans, clerk.

In opening statements to the jury yesterday afternoon, the district attorney, said his case will be based mostly on the statements that young Hlista made to the companion several days prior to the shooting, when the possibility of shooting his father was discussed.

Steward said he would seek a first-degree conviction.

Hlista also wounded his brother, Ronald, 15, because the boy discovered what had happened, Steward said.

Walkout At Crucible Mill Leaves 700 Idle

Some 700 employees of the Crucible Steel Co. were idled today when the company termed "an illegal work stoppage" in the cold strip department.

Pickets appeared at the gates of the Midland Works this morning but were later withdrawn. There was no one available for comment at the Steelworkers Union Hall but the company said the wildcat strike began Monday night after a worker, who also is an official of Local 1212, was sent home in disciplinary action for improper work performance and allegedly attacking a foreman.

Production was curtailed in some departments, principally in hot and cold strip, but other units continued in operation. The mill employs about 6,000.

Destruction Vowed

China Rips U.S., Russia 'Alliance'

TOKYO (AP)—Red China asserted today that Soviet leaders have joined the United States, India and Yugoslavia in a "holy alliance" to strangle revolutionary movements and reinstate capitalism.

An article in the Red Chinese theoretical journal Red Flag said Premier Khrushchev "has for years been agitating and pulling strings for the new holy alliance."

Broadcast by Radio Peking, the article predicted that "the new holy alliance" will be destroyed as were its predecessors.

The United States represents imperialism in the alliance, said Peking. Prime Minister Nehru's India represents reaction, and President Tito's Communist Yugoslavia revisionism — violation of Marxist-Leninist principles.

"What dirty and despicable deals they are going to make calls for close attention by the people of the world," Peking said.

In the latest Peking contribution to the running China-Soviet quarrel, Red Flag took a long look at the holy alliances of the 18th and early 19th centuries and said their "halcyon days" did not last long.

"They may storm and rage for a while," Red Flag said, "but they are fated to fail. This is the law of history."

The journal said that since World War II, China and a number of other countries have embarked on the road of socialism "bringing into existence the socialist camp of 13 countries, including Cuba."

Now, it said, a new alliance has appeared as a reaction against revolution. Leaders of the alliance declare its purpose to be sacred and noble, Peking said, and to maintain peace and order, rectify social chaos and build freedom.

"Translated into plain language," Red Flag said, "these holy statements should read: to strangle the revolutionary movements of the oppressed people and the liberation movements of the oppressed nations; to preserve the order of imperialist and reactionary domination, and then to reinstate capitalism in the socialist countries."

Rules Out Aid Cuts

Kennedy Urges Patience In Dealing With Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy says the United States must pursue a policy of patience in South Viet Nam and avoid a get-tough slash in aid.

An aid cut, Kennedy said Monday night, might bring about a collapse of the Vietnamese government of Ngo Dinh Diem and open all of Southeast Asia to the threat of a Communist take-over.

The President, in a nationally televised interview on NBC's Huntley-Brinkley Report, conceded there was no easy solution to the Vietnamese problem marked by internal opposition to the Diem regime and the government's widespread arrests of Buddhists and students.

Kennedy expressed the administration viewpoint in these words:

"We are using our influence to persuade the government there to take those steps which will win back support. That takes some time and we must be patient, we must persist."

He expressed concern that Americans might get impatient and urge a U.S. withdrawal from South Viet Nam.

"That only makes it easy for the Communists," Kennedy said. "I think we should stay. We should use our influence in as ef-

Gas Rate Plan Due Study At Salineville

Council Eyes PUC Check On Increase Sought By Utility

SALINEVILLE — Preparations to take a gas rate boost proposal under study by the Ohio Public Utilities Commission were authorized by Council Monday night.

Council also learned that a disputed pump operation on a new water main extension to Monroe Heights is slated for discussion with state health authorities.

Council ordered legislation prepared requesting the PUC to study the village gas rate structure in line with a requested 7 per cent rate boost for the next four years by the Ohio Fuel & Gas Co.

At a meeting last month, Council rejected the proposed gas rate hike which the utility had reduced from an original 11 per cent increase.

About 10 residents attended last night's meeting to express opinion on the gas rate plan. Some favored acceptance of the boost, while others supported the move to have the PUC study the rate request.

Council also discussed the reported county and state recommendations that use of a pump to maintain water flow in the new water main be discontinued because it posed a possible health hazard.

The pump was installed by Dr. J. M. Nedelkoff to provide water for a new rest home in that area.

It was reported that the physician has requested Atty. J. Warren Bettis to confer with state officials concerning the matter.

Troops Get Orders For Withdrawal

Kennedy Move Hits Governor's Use Of Soldiers In Dispute

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — President Kennedy snatched control of 17,000 Alabama National Guardsmen away from Gov. George C. Wallace today and 20 Negro children integrated public schools at Birmingham, Mobile and Tuskegee.

Wallace, who had blocked their entry Monday with executive orders and state troopers, declined comment at Montgomery on the President's federalization of the Guard and the desegregation that followed quickly.

Desegregation below the college level in Alabama came first Monday at Alabama where there was normal classroom activity today. Wallace mysteriously made no attempt to block desegregation there.

Thirteen of the 20 who were turned back by state troopers Monday and went to school there today were at Tuskegee. There were five at Birmingham and two at Mobile.

The transition was peaceful at most of the schools but at West End High School in Birmingham several hundred white pupils began jeering after two Negro girls entered. The white group refused to go into the building.

Two teenage Negroes walked into Murphy High School at Mobile before 7:30 a.m. to become the first of their race to attend school with white pupils in the state at the high school level. The Huntsville desegregation involved grammar and junior high schools.

Guardsmen under Wallace's control for a few hours went on duty before dawn at the Mobile school. But they withdrew later to an armory under Kennedy's federalization proclamation.

Police were on guard at another high school and a grammar school in Birmingham but were needed only to direct traffic, and there was little of that. Demonstrators, who clashed with police last Wednesday when desegregation was first scheduled, were absent today.

Police Seek Canton Girl's Brutal Slayer

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Stark County sheriff's deputies combed the fields around a housing development west of here today in search of clues to the brutal slaying of a 20-year-old babysitter.

The girl, Sandra Kay Young, had been shot and her throat was slashed by an intruder some time Monday afternoon while she was caring for three small children. The body was found by Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Haag Jr. when they returned home from work.

The children—ages 1, 3 and 4—were unharmed.

Stark County Sheriff W. J. Hine said the girl apparently fought with her assailant at the home north of here. A bloody knife lay near the body.

Witnesses reported seeing a late-model automobile leaving the area of the house 2½ hours before the body was discovered. A description of the man in the car was given by witnesses.

Authorities said the woman had not been raped and no money appeared to have been taken. The closest neighbor is about 200 yards away.

Council Asks Measure On Labor Strikes

City Council instructed Solicitor Joseph W. Cooper Monday night to prepare legislation prohibiting persons or firms not directly involved in a strike or lockout from recruiting persons to take the places of the strikers.

Councilman Floyd Murray made the motion for legislation to be introduced at next Monday's meeting after objecting to the delay. The proposal was seconded by Councilman Frank Duffy.

'Watered Down' Plan
In response to a question from Murray, Cooper said the legislation would be "watered down" from a proposed ordinance given him by the Citizens' Job Protection Committee of East Liverpool Typographical Union 318, which has been advocating passage for several months.

Murray's motion followed talks by Charles Brookes, local president; Russ Matthews, secretary, and Tom Seever of Local 318 and E. L. Wheatley, president of the International Brotherhood of Operative Potters.

Twelve letters from various union groups supporting the ITU proposal were turned over to Council by Murray. At its meeting Aug. 19, Council received six letters from businessmen objecting to the so-called "strike-breaking" law.

Questions Objections
In a prepared statement he read to Council, Brookes said he was surprised at the objections Council had received. "I cannot see how anyone could intelligently oppose a law that to my knowledge has not even been written locally, and cannot be written until Solicitor Cooper is requested to do so by Councilman (Robert W. Sample Jr.) Sample and his (ordinance) committee. This 'further study' could go on for months."

Brookes said the objectors to the law apparently had heard or read of a similar law enacted in Akron but failed to take note of a phrase which limits the proposed law to the prohibition of the entry of a third segment into a labor-management dispute.

The primary concern of the law, Brookes said, "is to keep out scabs and undesirables often connected with strike-breaking and trouble-making." He cited Alliance as a community in which the conditions prevailed and residents were deprived of their jobs and replaced by non-resident, non-taxpaying people.

Need Not Anticipated
The local president emphasized the union does not anticipate any need for the law but said the request was initiated "in a sense of self-preservation".

Wheatley said he backed the proposal "personally and officially 100 per cent" and declared Council has an obligation to union members who comprise the largest segment of the community. He noted that four councilmen are union members.

Matthews said 10 states, including most of the large industrial states, and 25 cities now have such a law. Akron is the first city in Ohio to enact the ordinance "but I would like to see East Liverpool second to show that we're on the ball."

Two state organizations now are working on a statewide proposal to be presented to the State Legislature, Matthews said.

Similarity of Letters
After reading the letters Council received opposing the legislation and noting the similarity in some, Seever said "one big letter" from the Chamber of Commerce could have had the same effect."

In a brief exchange that followed, Murray asked Sample what was delaying the legislation which he said was presented to Council July 17. "Either the ordinance committee or the solicitor is holding it up. Someone is. I'm a member of the ordinance committee and I know nothing about this. I would like to see it brought in tonight."

Sample said the proposed legislation was turned over to Cooper to check on the legality but that the solicitor hadn't been instructed to bring in the ordinance for consideration.

Vote Ends Discussion
The vote followed ending the discussion.

The letters supporting the proposal were received from Trades and Labor Council, IBOP, AFL-CIO Executive Council, Retail Clerks Union 133, Local 172, American Federation of Musicians, Pressmen's Local 122, Local 849, United Brick and Clay Workers, United Steelworkers Local 1212 of Midland, IBOP Locals 9, 94 and 148 and the Theaters Workers Local.

City Ordinances Code Book Asked

Recodification of the city's ordinances using a decimal system in a loose-leaf notebook was proposed to Council Monday night by Solicitor Joseph W. Cooper.

The solicitor's request was turned over to the ordinance committee for investigation following the explanation of the new system, which Cooper estimated might cost $3,000 to $4,000.

COOPER EXPLAINED he is "very unhappy" with the present code book since no room is provided for expansion to accommodate changes in laws. The solicitor pointed out that he now must check the code book along with a supplement published in 1959 and legislation passed in the four years since then before he can answer questions asked by Council.

However, police and administrative officials are handicapped most since they have no ready reference and some questions must be answered quickly, Cooper explained.

Under the system used in Cambridge, a loose-leaf notebook about 8-x-10 contains printed ordinances with each chapter bearing a number and a decimal system used for all legislation relating to a particular heading. Under the system proposed by the solicitor, the loose-leaf pages can be printed at the end of the year and inserted in their proper place in the notebook.

COUNCIL ALSO received a letter from Atty. Robert S. Hartford of East Palestine, counsel for John W. Young, operator of the Inter-City Transit System, asking approval of transfer of the franchise of the East Liverpool-Wellsville bus line to his brother-in-law, Victor Houser.

Hartford said the proposed change already has been approved by the Ohio Public Utilities Commission.

Houser is familiar with the local routes and would continue to use the same equipment and operate out of the Calcutta garage. No change in personnel would be made, the attorney said. It would be known as the City Transit System.

Young would continue to operate between Youngstown, East Liverpool and Wheeling and to Salineville and East Palestine and also would retain his charter service, Hartford informed Council.

THE REQUEST was turned over to the franchise committee for investigation.

Cooper advised Council a statewide change in traffic speed limits effective Sept. 30 will increase the speed limit on the city freeway from 50 to 60 miles an hour for all vehicles except trucks and commercial tractors weighing over 4,000 pounds empty and school buses.

Councilman Floyd Murray, a member, reported that no meetings have been held by a special Council committee named to consider the types of trash to be collected by the incinerator department. The chairman, Councilman Edward Massey, was absent.

In response to a query from Asst. Fire Chief Alfred Van Dyne, the solicitor said he still has a copy of a Canton ordinance concerning condemnation of property and "tear-down" notices which VanDyne said he turned over to Council about 18 months ago.

VAN DYNE also asked Council about the overdrawn motor maintenance account of the fire department but was informed by Councilman George E. Willshaw, chairman of the finance committee, that the $453 will not be available until the city receives money in excess of its appropriations. Tax funds being received from the county auditor's office have no bearing since they previously were appropriated, Willshaw explained.

Councilman S. James Welch told Council that overhead directional signs for motorists on Market St. still have not been erected although requested 2½ months ago.

He also asked the solicitor to determine if there is any city laws pertaining to trees on city property. He said many complaints about trees are received which are not covered by the present city code.

COUNCIL ALSO approved the recommendation of the franchise committee, headed by Councilman Frank Duffy authorizing taxi stands at E. 6th and Market Sts., E. 5th and Washington Sts. and at the Travelers Hotel.

Duffy renewed a complaint concerning an auto dealer blocking sidewalks at Pennsylvania Ave. and Walters St., commenting he has made three complaints in Council, gone to the police four times and talked with the director.

"The man is deliberately and willfully violating the law. Something has got to be done or the people will take the matter in their own hands," he warned.

He also asked the street department to investigate a complaint in Etna Alley in the West End. Councilman Kenneth C. Berg, chairman, said the street committee will investigate Saturday.

ON BERG'S recommendation, Council authorized street lights on Rigby St. between Grant St. and E. 9th St. or Burton Alley and on Etruria St.

A claim from George MacLeod of Industry R. D. 1 for $158.50 for damages to his car July 31 when struck by a city truck on E. 5th St. was referred to the claims committee.

A copy of a letter from Dayton Allen, chairman of the East Liverpool Merchants Association, to Mayor Bert H. Goodballet urging a satisfactory solution be worked out for the proposed St. Clair Ave. improvement was received and filed.

Berg said the city still has not received some new figures on the St. Clair project that administration officials requested at a conference with State Highway Department in Columbus last month.

School Levies Campaign Set

to the standing salary schedule, which is based on training and experience.

Supt. Lowell Myers reported he had met with the presidents of the various PTA groups in regard to the campaign for the passage of school levies. Two, 6.1 mills and 5.4 mills, will be up for renewal in November.

Door hangers will be prepared and a "Key Citizens" approach used, he said. Letters will be sent to leading residents urging their backing for the levies. Board members will meet with the PTAs to discuss the levies.

The schedule for meetings includes Oct. 7, MacDonald; Oct. 10, Fairview; Oct. 21, Garfield and McKinley; Oct. 28, Dawson Junior High. The board will make a 20- to 30-minute presentation of facts and then hold a question-and-answer period.

Myers said there was very little difficulty experienced the opening day of school. He said one teacher fell and broke a leg before school opened and a substitute is being used. Another is ill. He said a new bus run has been added to 18th St. Heights to pick up senior high students. They previously rode on Southern Local buses, but with the opening of that district's new high school, the buses no longer come to Wellsville.

He said there are 12 tuition students from Southern Local this year. Five others who were in Wellsville last year decided to return to Southern Local.

There are three tuition students in kindergarten, two from Southern Local and one from East Liverpool.

The enrollment opening day was 1,833 but now stands at 1,843, Myers reported. There are 974 elementary students. The count by buildings is 578, high school; 291, junior high; 166, Fairview; 350, Garfield; 409, MacDonald, and 40, McKinley.

Adjustments were authorized in the salaries of Mrs. Nelle Platt, who is changing from two to three years training, and Mrs. Helen Welch, who is changing from five years training to a master's degree.

The board also approved an adjustment for Miss Alvada Marshall, as she is teaching five periods each day instead of four. Mrs. Doris Rogers was hired to teach a typing class during the noon lunch period for an additional $500 a year.

Myers said several college preparatory students have requested typing and they cannot be worked into the regular schedule.

Myers said a study is needed of the Commercial and College Preparatory Departments. All students taking college preparatory should be required to have typing, he said. Dysert pointed out the lack of facilities needed to handle all those who want typing. Myers said the noon period will fill the requirement for this year.

The resignation of Carl Chanels as custodian at McKinley was accepted, effective Sept. 20. Myers congratulated Earl Mundy, supervisor of custodians and maintenance, and the custodians on the fine condition of the buildings for the opening. He also reported that William Menough, high school principal, had prepared a handbook which was presented to the students.

Myers reminded members of a meeting of all Boards of Education in Columbiana County Thursday night at 8 at McKinley School in Lisbon. A speaker from the vocational department of the Ohio Department of Education will be present.

An informal meeting between the board and the building principals and other administrators will be held Tuesday, Sept. 24, at 7:30 p. m. in the cafeteria. A similar meeting was held last year to discuss various problems and phases of the operation of the system.

Wellsville will serve as host for four other boards at a dinner meeting Thursday, Oct. 3, at the cafeteria. Myers said further details will be announced later. Each board will present a problem for the others to discuss and possibly offer a solution.

A discussion was held on the condition of the grass at Nicholson Stadium. Richard Grills, board member, said a concentrated effort should be made this fall to get the field in good condition for next year. Grass planted last spring burned out during the summer and creates a dusty condition for playing.

The board agreed to the work and also to remove a wire fence along the edge of the field, about six feet back from the sidelines. The fence at the end of the field will be extended to meet the stadium, thereby blocking anyone from walking in front of the stadium.

Grills made the suggestion, pointing out that the players could be seriously injured when they are knocked into the fence. The poles supporting the lighting system will be padded.

A discussion was held on who has the authority to keep unauthorized persons off the field during the games and half-time. A mascot from Beaver climbed a goal post and perched atop it during the game Friday night. He also interfered with the Wellsville Band.

It was pointed out the football officials are in full control of the field during play. Myers said a letter of protest had been sent the Beaver school as to the mascot in regards to the band.

William Ferrall, board president, said someone should be designated with authority to order police to handle certain situations.

Dysert remarked about teams running up high scores against one another. He said that when a strong opposing team continues to use first-string players against a smaller team "to run up a score it no longer is a game." He pointed to the danger of players being injured.

Dysert said whenever a coach orders a thing like this "I think the other team should just step back and let them make the extra points."

Myers and others agreed Wellsville is playing teams "out of its class."

er several complaints, the classification of students grouped as to ability was changed to alphabetical order.

Walters said this was done because of numerous incidents of behavior problems. In an attempt to alleviate the situation somewhat, students were classified alphabetically so as to break up the rowdy group.

The board decided to use the system for at least six weeks to see how it works out.

Mrs. Velma Ketterer, who resigned at the August meeting, was rehired as a fourth grade teacher at a salary of $5,400, and Mrs. Thelma Waggle was hired as high school librarian for a period of 10 months, at a salary of $4,700, and as the public librarian, until June 20, 1964, at an additional salary of $500.

Samuel Rosatone, maintenance superintendent, was authorized to have the west end of the football stadium painted, with cost of materials not to exceed $125.

He reported that the boiler room door at the high school was damaged during the July 4th festivities by a backing school bus and needs repairs.

Supt. Ralph Jewell was instructed to determine if the insurance carried by the July 4th committee covered the damage. Meanwhile, Rosatone was authorized to obtain estimates on the cost of repairs.

He also said a washer-dryer used by the football and basketball teams was damaged by water during the summer flood and suggested that another machine be purchased. The proposal was turned over to the property committee for study.

Two of the faculty omitted in the original approval list were granted raises in salary. C. Lloyd Deffenbaugh, music instructor, received a raise of $50 and Walters $150.

The board authorized placing of a telephone in the pressbox at the football stadium for the use of the coaches at a cost of $5 per month, renewal of insurance on the driver training car for $129.35 from the Basinger & Gifford agency, and endorsement of insurance on the school tractor in the amount of $89.30 from the agency.

A blanket bond on all professional employees was renewed for a fee of $83.57 with the McGeehan Agency.

A request from the National Hot Stove League to use the stadium Saturday mornings for the midweek football program and for one night football game was approved. Another request for passes to the high school varsity games for Midweek League players was turned over to the Athletics Council for disposition.

Also granted was a request by the Hot Stove League for use of the stadium field Oct. 12 for a boys' punt-pass-and-kick contest. Paul Farman, first assistant to the head football coach, requested an increase in salary in a letter. Charles Polce, head coach, had asked for an increase on Farman's behalf at the May meeting, but the request was denied by the board on recommendation of the finance committee. It was turned over to the finance committee for discussion.

The board congratulated Police and the team for the fine showing Friday night in defeating McKeesport Serra and wished them good luck for the game with East Liverpool Saturday night.

In response to a request from the Midland Junior Women's Club for use of one of the high school gyms for a wrestling match as a fund-raising project, the secretary, Miss Bernice Coffin, was authorized to contact the club with the needed information and, if there is no conflicts, to grant the request at the regular fee.

Morrison suggested that organizations desiring information on gymnasium rentals need not write the board but may make arrangements through the superintendent's office.

The Hill and Valley Neighborhood of the Girl Scouts requested a place for meetings and was granted use of a designated area below the new gym.

Supt. Jewell announced that the evening extension classes for adults would be continued this fall, with Walters as supervisor.

Application of several dependent children who have moved into the school district, to enter the public school without tuition, was approved.

On the recommendation of Supt. Jewell, the high school library will be opened in the evenings, except football nights, and Mrs. Ben Kay was appointed as supervisor at $2.50 per hour.

Supt. Jewell was granted permission to attend the Chief School Administrators meetings Oct. 1-3 at Harrisburg and Oct. 20-23 at Bedford.

On motion of Shovlin, Miss Coffin was authorized to express thanks to the fire departments that assisted during the flooding. She was also instructed to advertise for bids on coal.

Interim orders placed by Supt. Jewell during August, amounting to $705.80, were ordered paid. The report of Mrs. Eldamae Castelli, treasurer, was ordered filed, as was the tax collector's report for August.

The Library Board was authorized to purchase books worth $212.42. General bills in the amount of $22,856.72 were ordered paid and cash receipts of $238.64 were received.

Payment of a special bill of the McCaral Plumbing & Heating Co., for $2,541.56 on the new hot water tank, was authorized.

Next regular meeting is Oct. 14.

Street Repair Contracts Due

The Wellsville Board of Control is expected to award contracts within a week on the annual street improvement program and the cleaning and repairing of the water standpipes.

The street improvement program is expected to cost between $19,000 and $20,000. It calls for the application of seal-coating to numerous sections and the blacktopping of Commerce St. between 16th and 17th St.

The Ohio Valley Paving Corp. of St. Clairsville bid $16,524.30 for all the work except Buckeye Ave., which was bid at 25.8 cents per square foot for seal-coating.

The Tri-State Asphalt Corp. of Martins Ferry bid $16,829.24 for all the work except Buckeye Ave., which was bid at 26 cents per square foot.

The K. Kessler Co., Inc., of Fremont bid $5,570 for the cleaning, scaling, inspection and painting of the interior and exterior of the standpipes off Highland Ave. The firm bid $2.90 per foot for welding and 45 cents each for replacement or welding of rivets and pits.

The Continental - Fremont Inc. of Fremont offered $6,295 for the basic work with $3.60 per foot for welding and 60 cents for rivets and pits.

Only $15,000 had been appropriated by City Council earlier this year for the street work and $5,500 for the tank work.

Council held a special session Saturday night and adopted legislation appropriating $5,000 more for the street program and $70 more for the standpipes.

Council designated $2,000 from the parking meter fund and $3,000 from the street fund for the street contract and the $70 for the standpipes will come from the water depreciation fund.

Safety-Service Director Fred Baldasare and Auditor Edgar S. Davidson opened a bid Friday for the reconstruction of a pavilion at Hammond Park. It was for $2,387.07 from the Wellsville Jaycees.

Action on this will be taken when Mayor William Daugherty, the other member of the board, returns from Kansas City, Kan., where he is registering his daughter in college.

The pavilion was destroyed by wind last spring. The loss is covered by insurance. The new insurance program was adopted earlier by the administration.

ing about 100 which will be placed in non-metered areas. Approximately 300 would replace present meters which have been termed inefficient.

The Pittsburgh firm urged a complete color-coded system with a maximum time of four hours for on-street parking.

Of the present meters, 531 should be changed with 442 new and the remainder to be adapted to the four-hour limit, the Pittsburgh concern said. The penny mechanism on some of the new meters and the 10-hour mechanism on others could be adapted to the four-hour limit, Caye explained.

The sales representative told Council that motorists parking on the fringe areas of the downtown area would prefer a four-hour meter rather than the present maximum of two hours, requiring them to return to the cars.

The Pittsburgh firm also recommended elimination of the penny meters, allowing 12 minutes parking for a cent.

Owen said a complete meter system could be obtained at a minimum cost, estimating the cost at $20,000 to $25,000. The uniform metering system would eliminate complaints and confusion, the director said, declaring he could guarantee a different picture with different meters.

Presidents Must Be Elected

Either commentators working overtime on the Goldwater theme flunked American history or are twisting records to suit their anti-Goldwater prejudice.

They say repeatedly the junior senator from Arizona is so badly out of step with his party his nomination for the presidency would be unthinkable. They keep arguing that his views are unacceptable to the Eastern wing of the Republican party and largely unacceptable to the party as a whole, therefore he can't be nominated.

But they say nothing about the reason Sen. Goldwater is being talked about in connection with 1964 presidential politics — the fact his personality has caught public fancy and looms large as a prime political factor. No matter who might be the Republican presidential nominee a year from now, he will need Sen. Goldwater's personal help in the presidential race. It's not his necessarily ideas but his personality that makes him a political potentiality.

AS TO HISTORY, what recent presidents won the office because their views were in harmony with those of their political party's leading figures or even the mass of voters? Which ones were nominated because their views were universally endorsed?

Herbert Hoover was regarded as a political wild man by leading Republicans in 1928. But he was a beloved popular figure who could draw votes from Democrats as well as Republicans.

Franklin D. Roosevelt ran as a conservative in 1932, castigating the Hoover administration for spending too much money. In 1936, he was a New Dealer. In 1940 he was keeping the United States out of war. In 1944 he was keeping the United States in war. But even though he never pleased leading Democrats and voters never endorsed his program in its specific details, he was phenomenally popular.

So was Harry Truman, in a lesser way. Then came Dwight Eisenhower, whose name was magic at the polls and whose program never got off the ground. And now it's John F. Kennedy who has the magic name and a program stuck in the mud.

PRESIDENTS must be elected. They are not ordained.

When the hour strikes for a political decision, the decision is made on the basis of probable votes, not on the basis of probable peace and harmony.

Differences of opinion can be threshed out later. First, though, it is necessary to win an election.

Unlucky Numbers

The average area driver, traveling at a brisk 61 miles an hour along Route 30 or hitting 65 along the East Liverpool - Super Road, rarely relates himself to a traffic statistic.

He is aware of the hazard of high speed, but gives it primary thought only when faced with a near crisis of the highway.

The fact that 16 people have died in Columbiana County traffic accidents this year compared with 23 at this time last year, means little to him except that some people apparently have been lucky.

Only when he sees an ambulance or patrol cruiser sweeping by with its red lights flashing or when he spots a twisted jumble of wreckage from a crash or when he reads or is told of a fatality does the average motorist wonder if he might be the next.

But the danger is always there. A moment of carelessness can change the traffic statistics in a hurry.

A Change In The Image

Teachers in the New York City school system were torn apart by disagreements over the tactics that threatened to set up picket lines and a strike when school opened this week.

Not even all teachers who belonged to United Federation of Teachers, which was threatening to call a strike, were in agreement about the UFT strategy.

It was as hard-nosed as the strategy of an industrial union. It was based squarely on the same supposition — that no one in this world gets as much grease as a squeaking wheel, especially a squeaking wheel that threatens to quit functioning if not cared for promptly.

THE NEW YORK teachers variously deplored and admired the action that put them in the limelight. On one thing all of them could agree. There had been a change in the image of the New York schoolteacher.

The teacher no longer is an educated functionary performing at the beck and call of the school board, subject to the pleasure of parents and community peculiarities.

Teachers have turned into an occupational pressure bloc capable of bargaining for themselves and their schools as ruthlessly as truck drivers, electricians and dock workers bargain.

They resent a New York law that makes it illegal for them to strike, though it is Enough Rope

You wonder sometimes about expressions that everybody uses, like giving a man enough rope to hang himself.

It makes more sense sometimes to say a man takes enough rope to hang himself, because the kind of hanging you have in mind when you talk this way is give-and-take.

If the rope is there to be taken and it is given out freely by those who otherwise could have kept it from being taken, you have a deal.

Like the deal going on in parts of this country where people who own rope keep playing it out to politicians who have the death impulse to hang themselves with it — and the thing moves on so inexorably it is like a glacier that pushes itself into the sea because there is everything to make it go and nothing to stop it.

Resides, there is no reason to stop it, because this is the way it is with glaciers — this natural law that relieves pressure by destroying the cause.

HANGING in an excess of rope is natural law.

Nothing can stop it once it begins, and nothing should. It is mankind's built-in cure for some of the worst things that befall it.

The impulse to plunge to self-destruction in large affairs is akin to the way antibodies prevail over disease in the small affairs that go on endlessly inside the human body.

Either the anti-bodies prevail, or the diseases prevail. In either event, the problem carries inside itself the solution that clears the boards — either for new problems or repetitions of the old ones.

It is not a nice thing to see, not a pretty thing to be involved in. A Mussolini or a Hitler runs amuck. The rope plays out. The reckless adventurer grabs more and more of it in his eager fists until the inevitable finally happens. The noose tightens — and oblivion.

Millions of others, many of them innocent, become entangled, too. Many are maimed. Many must die before it's over.

It happens abroad, where it can be viewed objectively. And it happens at home, where it must be looked at subjectively. But when it has been seen once it has been seen in all its future manifestations.

THE ROPE is there for the taking, and the victim takes it.

Sooner or later, adverse public opinion tightens a noose. That's the story of excess, wherever it happens — business, politics, zealotry, manners, economics, private behavior.

Force and counter-force tumble end over end through the annals of world events, like a pair of gymnasts rolling across a stage in each other's embrace.

That's the way it goes — and it helps to remember the pattern while keeping abreast of the news.

The wild men are here today and gone tomorrow, the lot of them.

Meany Raps Soviet Aid Proposals

By Victor Riesel

There are influential administration policy makers, with easy and frequently used entry into the President's office, who believe now is the time to give Nikita Khrushchev substantial aid in his fight with Mao Tse-tung. These policy makers have just been rapped sharply by none other than John Kennedy's close friend George Meany, leader of the AFL-CIO. He is disturbed by forces here who are pushing for accommodations with the Soviet chairman.

Victor Riesel

Mr. Meany, no infrequent visitor to the White House himself, significantly timed his statements to coincide with the discussion of the nuclear test ban treaty.

So concerned is he with the strength of the belief that it is possible to win the U.S.S.R. over to the West, that he decided personally to sound an alarm. This he did in a signed editorial in The American Federationist now being distributed to millions of AFL-CIO members.

DESPITE THE SOVIET'S nuclear and industrial power, says Meany, the Soviet leader faces unrest at home and therefore is "in trouble."

"The West should consider Khrushchev's predicament," says Meany, "as an opportunity to extract concessions from him rather than as a reason for occasion for making concessions to him."

"This is NO time for the West rushing into accommodations with Moscow in order to help and strengthen Khrushchev as 'the lesser evil' of the two giant Communist imperialist powers, both of whom seek the destruction of all democratic society."

"This IS the time for the West to make united efforts for a settlement of the main problems causing international friction: the division of Germany, the Berlin wall, Soviet colonialism in East Europe, Soviet armed forces in Cuba and Moscow's rejection of general disarmament under adequate international inspection."

Meany, who has countered Communist tactics across the world, is not opposed to negotiations. He bluntly opposes appeasing or taking N. S. Khrushchev at his word.

MEANY, THEN, bluntly differs

HOW, ASKS MEANY, should the "West react to the serious Sino-Soviet rift?"

"First of all," asserts Meany, "it would be wrong to conclude that the free world is confronted with a choice between the two opponents, one of whom is the lesser danger."

"Both are very dangerous to the free world. This is obvious in the case of Communist China. . . . But this might be less clear in regard to the Soviet Union because it has laid particular stress on its 'peaceful' intentions as against the intentions of Peiping."

"Wishful thinking on our part, in this situation, would be fatal for our cause. If nothing else, the memory of the Cuban crisis, Khrushchev's Berlin ultimatum and continued Soviet support of the civil war in Laos should warn us against taking Moscow's pretensions to peace at their face value."

"Furthermore, because of its huge military machine, its possession of the most modern nuclear weapons and missiles, its rising industrial strength and the presence of the Red Army in the heart of Europe, the Soviet Union continues to be a powerful and dangerous enemy of the free world."

Vacations On Trial

By Terry Ferrer

This fall some 51.5 million students go back to the nation's public and private schools and colleges, a record-breaking enrollment for the 19th consecutive year.

The question is: Should they have ever left school for the long summer vacation?

As pupil numbers continue upward and more and more classrooms are needed to house them, can the educational system afford to take 2½ months off each year?

Or is summer vacation just a hangover from the days when children were needed at home to help their parents harvest the crops?

New York State intends to find out.

Last January, the joint legislative committee on school financing declared:

"By variations in the length of the school year and the length of the school year, more instruction can be given in 12 or 11 years than is now given in 13 years (kindergarten through 12th grade).

"Depending on the schedule used we believe that it would have been possible over the past years to have saved as much as $230 million annually in operating expenses, as much as $60 million annually in debt service, and as much as $826 million in capital construction without having impaired the instructional program."

THE COMMITTEE proposed that, for both enrichment and economy, the State Department of Education conduct experiments for three years in scheduling a longer school day and year. The Legislature went along with the proposal and appropriated $150,000 for the first year.

State Commissioner of Education James E. Allen Jr. has the experiments under way.

And Dr. Lorne H. Wollatt, associate commissioner for research, announced that six districts have been selected to begin the experiments next July 1 (if their school boards agree; if not, ten others are interested in participating).

Dr. Thomas put his finger on the two main points of the demonstration programs. "Parents are afraid," he said, "that children will get less schooling if we try to condense 13 years into 11 or 12. But children will definitely get more schooling."

This will be done through longer days and more days, perhaps by adding a half hour to each school day, and by raising the school year from 180 to 210 or 220 days.

THE OTHER POINT is the long-range cost problem of growing enrollment. New York State now spends about $2 billion a year on its public schools, with about half the funds coming from state aid. "New York," Dr. Thomas said, "will double its school costs in the next seven or eight years. Under this program of more schooling in less time, there are positive savings that can be made."

Munich And Now

U.S. Is On Alert In Nuclear Treaty

The treaty limiting nuclear tests will be ratified by the Senate. And yet the constructive opposition which has been recorded during the Senate hearings has served a beneficial purpose. This sounds paradoxical, but the treaty itself is a paradox — nobody knows whether it will ever be ratified.

David Lawrence came to mean what it says. The unresolved question is the good faith of the Soviet government.

The criticism and cautionary words spoken lately in debate have been registered all over the world but they are most important inside this country for they indicate that the treaty is to be ratified with eyes wide open and with mental reservations that can be rendered academic only if there is good faith on the part of the Soviets.

The military chiefs of the United States, despite the way their testimony has been glossed over in administration circles, remain skeptical. This doubt is influenced further by the announcement that several leading Democrats will vote against the treaty — two of them, Senators Russell of Georgia and Stennis of Mississippi, being chairman, respectively, of the Senate Military Affairs Committee and its subcommittee on preparedness.

The negative vote of other senators — Eastland of Mississippi, Robertson of Virginia, Byrd of West Virginia — is an additional sign that the Democratic party is by no means united.

Sen. Goldwater, R-Ariz., who has a military background, also has declared that he will vote against the treaty.

For several weeks now the treaty has received a favorable reception, and the impression has been conveyed that it is the forerunner of bigger things in the search for peace.

JUST 25 YEARS ago this month, another international agreement set off a wave of applause throughout the world as the British prime minister, Neville Chamberlain, said it meant "peace for our time."

Today, as "an important first step, a step towards peace" — to use the President's words — is hailed, and approving comments are uttered on every side even in the midst of official words of caution, there is a noticeably different atmosphere here from that which prevailed in 1938 after the Munich Treaty among France, Italy, Germany and Great Britain was signed. In that chorus of approval, this correspondent joined as he wrote:

"Force was really defeated — not triumphant — at Munich. The force that mobilized armies was pushed finally to one side in an outburst of fraternal emotion which seems incredible to read about today as we contrast it with the newspaper headlines of only a few days before."

"It's well to note these quick changes for their epochal meaning. The German leaders now avow through their spokesmen a feeling of friendship for their erstwhile enemies, the French.

"The British and German heads of government announce that they desire never to see their respective peoples go to war again. Pacts to limit armaments are in process of development already."

Disillusionment, however, came, at least to this correspondent, only a fortnight later as he read Hitler's speeches, which were in direct negation of the spirit of the Munich Treaty. Then, scarcely 11 months later, a surprise attack on Poland was ordered by the Nazi chief, and the second World War began.

WILL SUCH a reversal occur this time? The chances are against it for the West has learned its lesson. There may be some who think the criticisms of the nuclear test-ban treaty were superfluous.

A careful reading of what the military chiefs said in their testimony before a Senate subcommittee shows that nobody inside the government has been misled by the signing of the treaty by the Soviets. There is no tendency to let down the guard of this nation.

Whether such a trend might have developed but for the outspoken opposition by leaders in Congress as well as military chiefs is less important now than the fact that the points have been fully reported and are imbedded in the public records.

The first reaction in the press to the signing of the treaty was perhaps too optimistic. The aura surrounding the event was calculated to create the impression that the millennium in world affairs was just around the corner.

Even in Britain in 1938, Prime Minister Chamberlain himself promptly saw the danger of such an exaggerated optimism and tried to deflate it. He said to Parliament that he hoped the members would not misread what he had said about "peace for our time."

HE DECLARED that he had made this comment "in a moment of some emotion, after a long and exhausting day" and after he had driven "through miles of excited, enthusiastic, cheering people." He added:

"I do indeed believe that we may yet secure peace for our time, but I never meant to suggest that we should do that by disarmament, until we can induce others to disarm too."

Since the recent signing of the treaty limiting nuclear tests, there has been time to read the fine print, and there are many aspects that will continue to be discussed long after the ratification process is complete.

The big answer to doubts will come in deed, not words, and the important fact is that the government of the United States in all its branches is on the alert and will act to protect the people. For there is no safe alternative to such a precautionary mood or policy where survival is at stake.

Out Of The Air

By ALAN GILL

'Call It Luck Or Call It Genius'

"Sheer luck!"

That was how co-producer-writer Robert Northshield referred to the moving final scene of a documentary on American education, "an experiment in Excellence," which will be illuminating your TV screen the night of Sept. 19. I don't want to describe the scene, recorded in June by the NBC News cameras, beyond mentioning that it involves an elementary school teacher, Elizabeth H. Browne, and a small boy named Dominic on the occasion of Miss Browne's last day of teaching, after 45 years of experience in the Pittsburgh school system.

IT IS A SCENE of beauty and truth, all the more powerful because of the quiet reserve and dignity of the woman and the boy.

But it is only sheer luck that has made a dry-sounding subject (the new experimentation going on in our school systems) into an absorbing and even a stirring experience?

If so, then the luck of Northshield and his fellow writer-producer-director, Frank DeFelitta, required some careful thought and hard work before it could be made to work.

"We started out with the idea that we'd cover a modern, dynamic school system in a big city," DeFelitta said. "I thought New York would be the perfect place. I thought, too, that we'd skip around the country."

"WE WENT to an excellent man on education, Fred Hechinger, and asked his advice. He said, 'New York? Absolutely not!' He suggested Pittsburgh."

"There they have a whole lot of experimental stuff, with the important exception of machine teaching. They don't have that because they're not satisfied with the curriculum."

"Then we went after the right teacher. And quite frankly our teacher selection was machined. He wanted to move people's consciences. He wanted to be emotional, to make an audience realize that this person is terribly important."

"After all, the kids spend as much time with her as they do with their parents."

"LET ME SAY," Northshield broke in, "and Frank can correct me — and he will! — that she HAD to be an elementary school teacher. The kids are cuter, etc. She HAD to be retiring. She HAD to be just great."

"Elizabeth Browne was one of the last we met. That incredible name! It was perfect."

"But this gal hardly seemed warm, or charming. She's not an outgoing baloney artist or the mass concept of what a good teacher is. She's kind of rough with the kids and, in a sense, was most uncooperative with us. "She'd let us look in on all her teaching activities — to film everything — but she refused to do anything abnormal. She was Miss Integrity herself!"

"INSTINCTIVELY, we knew this was our girl. She was my old Miss Bave from grammar school. She was good. We FELT the excellence that was there. I'm proud of us; we stuck with the genuine article."

"Somehow, Elizabeth Browne exudes a serious dedication and a lifetime of concern. Like most women teachers, she gave up the conventional life and chose to be Miss Something, a teacher, rather than Mrs. Something, a housewife."

Throughout their weeks in Pittsburgh's elementary and high schools, in their photographed talks with educators and students, and in the many spontaneous happenings in the classrooms and study halls, Northshield and DeFelitta kept a pair of cameras going steadily.

DeFelitta gestured to the scores of cans of film occupying one wall of the small NBC workroom.

"Look at it," he said. "Enough for 30 shows!"

In a front corner of Miss Browne's class and atop a ladder in the back of the room, the two NBC cameras had been eavesdropping silently for weeks.

Then, on that last day, after the report cards had been handed out and all but one of the children had filed out, the cameras captured the scene they had been waiting for.

Call it luck, if you choose. Or call it genius.

Intangible Tax Share To Help Pay City Bills

City Auditor L. C. Applegate said today the city will pay off some obligations with the $56,848 it received as its share of intangible taxes from County Auditor Kenneth Bell's office.

Applegate said the city owes approximately $22,000 in operating expenses, which will be paid immediately. A note for $21,000 also will be paid and the balance will be used to meet payrolls, the auditor said.

Applegate said there will be no lag in payment of bills as long as tax funds are received from the county auditor's office.

2 Escapees Returned To London Institution

LONDON, Ohio (AP) — Two walk-aways from London Correctional Institution were put back behind bars within a few hours Monday.

Robert Beltz, 28, serving 1-20 years for forgery from Summit County, and Charles Whisner, 31, doing 1-7 for larceny from Hamilton County — walked away from an honor dormitory. They were found a few hours later in a cornfield by guards and highway patrolmen.

Aide Says Reds Seek Cooperation In Space

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Nikolai T. Fedorenko, Soviet ambassador to the United Nations, says his country is determined to overcome U.S.-Soviet differences and cooperate in the peaceful uses of outer space.

But he said the Soviet Union still will insist that any international agreement covering space exploration bar the use of so-called spy satellites. The United States has long argued that this cannot be separated from disarmament issues.

Keep In Trim

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Don't Talk Diet While Dining

If you have slimmed down 10 pounds this summer and are now trying for 20, fine. Now that you have the knack of eating to build leanness, you can lick your weight to a healthy standard. You will find that the less you talk diet, the easier it will be not to overeat.

Above all, do not talk diet. Ida Jean Kain has just complimented you on how beautifully well you are looking these days. It may be a temptation to boast, or to say that you've been dieting. Skip it. Mystery has its merits. Tell him you're feeling wonderful. Let him assume you are one of Eve's favored daughters and just naturally liasome.

DIET TALK may be fascinating to women, but it is a boring subject to most men. Once, long ago, I recall trying to help my dinner date to lose weight. It seemed such a shame not to use my nutrition knowledge — with famed feminine tact of course. He seemed eager enough, but you know, I never heard from that man again!

Now the only single man I would ever talk diet with would be that dashing movie star, Cary Grant. Then it wouldn't be dull calorie talk, but an exciting conversation on his theory of thinking thin. The debonair Mr. Grant has worked out a system that works sheer magic. He keeps lithe, lean and perennially boyish by "thinking thin" as he terms it.

THE TECHNIQUE is to see yourself as thin in your mind's eye, and you will eventually be the way you picture. The secret? By thinking and picturing the way you want to be, you gradually find yourself reacting positively to slimming fare and disliking fattening foods. It's as simple as that. Farfetched as it may seem, this is all blissfully true.

But now back to your dinner date. Your escort of the evening will appreciate the fact that you look slim and lovely and blooming with health, and that obviously you did not toss all calorie caution to the summer breezes. But he's not even slightly interested in the details.

Regarding the menu, there is no need to make an issue of what you order. The entire meal can be slimming if you have decided in advance not to overeat. You can skip the hot rolls, the fried foods and the rich dessert. It is quite in the best gourmet tradition to order just coffee. Or cheese and fruit.

Come to think about it those who talk diet never seem to get very slim. The girls who receive the most dinner invitations are the ones who do not overdrink, overeat, or talk diet either.

Study Shows Fat Levels Related To Heart Attack

NEW YORK (AP)—In a carefully watched group of Americans, those with high cholesterol levels not only develop more coronary disease, but they develop it more frequently—and it leads more often to a fatal heart attack.

That is one verdict from a study of 5,127 men and women in Framingham, Mass., reported today by Dr. William B. Kannel of the National Heart Institute.

It may not mean that cholesterol itself is the culprit, he said. But as cholesterol—one kind of blood fat—goes, so go other blood fat measurements.

From this, said Dr. Kannel, you can conclude that "in a population that has been saturated with fat some threshold (of safety) has been passed."

In the Framingham study, about 1 in 10 of the men between the ages of 30 and 60 have developed some coronary disease in the last 10 years.

Of those who have the first signs or symptoms of coronary disease, 35 per cent die within the first three weeks, 55 per cent of them suddenly.

If there is a set of suggestions a doctor might offer a patient, Kannel said, they might be something like this:

Get up and exercise, eat a less-rich diet, less of foods with saturated fats, smoke fewer cigarettes; and if you have high blood pressure, get it lowered, and if you are overweight, lose weight.

Plane's Crash Kills 3 Hunters At Sandusky

SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP)—Minutes before their airplane was to land, three men were killed when the craft flying their back from a Canadian hunting trip crashed here Monday.

The Highway Patrol said it appeared the wings buckled during a steep turn, but Ray Arto, a witness, said the plane exploded after coming into contact with a sea gull.

Killed were Earl Sloane, 51, of Galion, owner and pilot; his brother-in-law, Walter Selavko of Medina, and Henry Perry, 35, of Medina.

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: Last year we moved to this exclusive northern California suburb, were accepted immediately and invited to join The Club. This has been helpful to my husband's business.

One couple seems especially fond of us. Perhaps I'm imagining things but the woman (who is beautiful) always maneuvers around so she can sit next to my husband in the theater, the car and at parties. He doesn't seem to mind one bit.

In the meantime, she tells me repeatedly that her husband (who is a great pincher) thinks I'm devastating. Last night she asked me if I thought he was attractive. I said, "Of course," and tried to change the subject.

She then suggested we four fly to Mexico for a few days and half-jokingly added, "Ray and I have been married 11 years and we think it's time for a change."

I've heard of couples switching mates but I never believed it actually happened. My husband says I'm cracked — that she meant no such thing. He thinks the trip would be fun. What should I do? —GAMES IN BURLINGAME.

Dear Games: If this couple has a switchman's picnic in mind you'll get the pitch eventually, right there in good old Burlingame. So I don't think it matters much whether you go to Mexico or not.

Your husband may be one of those obtuse types who needs a building to fall on his head, so wait quietly until the timber flies — and then let him handle it.

Unexpected Bequest

Dear Ann: My wife's aunt, a retired school teacher, made her home with us for 10 years. We loved her and never considered her a burden. She helped with the housework and the children until she became too ill two years ago. She paid no room or board (we wouldn't hear of it) but she did pay her own medical bills.

Last week Aunt Liz passed away. Her will was probated a few days ago. We never knew she had anything. It was a surprise to find she had a tidy sum in municipal bonds and Liberty Bonds from World War I which she inherited from her father. She left everything to us.

This morning the telephone began to ring. My wife's sister and brother feel that since Aunt Liz was off her rocker toward the end it is up to us to share the money with them even though the will does not read that way. We are not acquisitive people and there is no great fortune involved here but we want to do the right thing. What is it? —SUDDENLY SOLVENT.

Dear Sudden: If Aunt Liz had wanted them to share in the inheritance she would have provided for them. I see no reason for you to feel guilty about enjoying the money — all of it.

Staff Of Dolts

Dear Ann: The letter from the staff who complained about the boss bringing his three kids to the office when his wife went out of town to visit her family made me mad.

Instead of grumbling and faulting the kids, why didn't the girls in the office use a little imagination and keep those youngsters busy? They could have played a game called "Do Me a Favor." The kids would have loved sorting papers, cutting out things, looking for certain kinds of pictures in magazines. Even a box of crayons and something to color would have kept them busy for hours.

Too many adults are not imaginative enough to occupy children's inquisitive minds and keep their hands busy. Then they blame the kids for being restless and destructive and call them "savages."

If the crew in that office isn't bright enough to figure out how to keep three lively youngsters occupied I feel sorry for their boss. —RELIEVED.

Dear Relieved: Thanks for an excellent letter and an ideal solution. (Where were you when I needed you?)

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hints from Heloise

— By Heloise Cruse —

Dear Heloise: I feed my dog a can of dog food daily.

I used to scrape and scrape to get all the food out of the can.

I have found that if I put the can of dog food in my sink and run hot water over both ends (and the sides) then turn off the faucet, open the can, then hold it over the dog dish . . . the dog food will slide right out!

No scrubbing . . . and my dog gets the benefit of all of the food in the can.

MRS. H. S. McLAREN.

Now who in this world would have thought of warming a can of dog food so that it will come loose in the can? Except you, bless your sweet time!

Since you sent this hint, I have tried your hot water method on a can of tomato aspic and boy does it slide out! I have also tried this method on a can of ham, heavy canned-condensed soup, canned cranberry sauce, spaghetti and meat of all . . . canned jellies and jams!

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: I cannot say that my laundry is so white that it actually blinds me when I hang it up, but I have found that if I wear dark glasses when going from the laundry room to the outside clothes line, it is far easier on my eyes.

Furthermore, when coming in from the blinding sun and going back into the shaded house, by removing my glasses I do not become "blind."

WASH WOMAN.

Tips From Waiter

DEAR HELOISE: I have been a head waiter in two of the most famous restaurants in America, and two of the swankiest private clubs.

It behooves me to pass along a few secrets from head waiters: Head waiters gossip.

Waiters can size you up in a minute.

Waiters can spot a sucker in about three minutes.

Waiters know they can "fool" those who don't know!

Waiters appreciate those most who read the menu closely, and what each order includes. Know why? We are not responsible for the menu the kitchen puts out. We love to let our patrons what's good, etc.

Another thing is when you go into these ritzy places, they will usually give you one menu. If you see no sandwiches or luncheon menu at noon, then ask the waiter, "Have you another menu?" Nine times out of 10 his answer will be "Yes."

If you will look on the bottom of the daily menu it usually says "sandwich menu on request." These sandwiches run anywhere from $1.50 to $3.50 but you get your money's worth.

What I am trying to convey is for people not to be embarrassed when asking for something, as this is what waiters appreciate the most.

We also respect the gentleman who looks over his check to see if he got everything he was charged for. The guy who is trying to be flippant (we waiters know) and pays the check after glancing at the total, we know won't be back tomorrow or the next day.

Waiters try hard to please, but we have to know your complaint before we can serve you correctly and we are most grateful to do it any time.

HEADWAITER.

Thank you, sir. We appreciate your wonderful advice.

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: I have found that the leaves of artichokes will stop my disposal up every time. Also long cuttings from garden plants and the strings left from cleaning rhubarb are impossible. Likewise raw skin from poultry, fish and fish bones.

My disposal instruction book says "celery, banana peels, corn husks and cobs are not advisable."

Most women do not read instructions that come with their appliances and therefore get themselves into unnecessary trouble. I know this is true because my husband was an appliance service man for seven years and I have heard him "sound off" about this.

MRS. G. D. BARTON.

Street Crew At Lisbon Due New Loader

LISBON — Council Monday night under emergency action authorized Mayor Dean Stockman to advertise for bids for a new industrial-type loader tractor for the street department.

The crew's present loader is out of operation. Solicitor Joseph Barozzi will advertise for bids from specifications prepared by Council.

Charles Gause of the Gause Implement, Inc., offered council a plan to lease an International diesel industrial loader, but Council decided the interest charges would be too high on a three-year lease, with option to purchase the equipment then for $1.

Clerk-Treasurer Ray Hempstead read recommendations from an Ohio industrial inspector and Mayor Dean Stockman make corrections at the village garage and at the Sadio VanFossan Swimming Pool.

Frank Henry, board member of the First Methodist Church, asked Council about its plans for diversion of water from a new parking lot south of the church. Mayor Stockman asked him to meet with the street committee Thursday at 5:30 p. m. to go over the drainage problem.

Council authorized erection of two lights at the ends of the S. Market St. bridge and one on Moore St., east of E. Chestnut St.

School Supt. Oliver Payne asked Mayor Stockman to allow only teacher parking at the high school. Council discussed the matter and Mayor Stockman instructed the street committee to check the situation and make recommendations at the next meeting.

A heated argument resulted over the question of who owns the land on the three corners of the Public Square after Councilman Fred Steele asked for more time to get another bid for cutting, trimming and feeding the trees.

Councilman Robert Keim said he checked with county commissioners and was advised that the three squares belong to the county.

Steele said if that is the case, "the village has been paying a lot of money in wages to keep them cleaned and mowed."

Mayor Stockman then ordered the solicitor to check and make sure who owns the property before the village does any more work. If the county owns them, then it will be asked to keep them clean.

Hempstead reported he had to transfer another $500 from the general fund to the swimming pool department to pay salaries for August, and that he would try for a final report on the cost of operation of the pool this summer.

Next regular meeting is Sept. 23 at 7:30 p. m. after a summer schedule of only one a month, although several special sessions were held.

How Can I? By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I improve the appearance of a gilded clock?

A. Try rubbing it with a cloth dampened with alcohol or turpentine.

Q. How can I make a cleaner for silk, satin, lace, or any cloth?

A. A paste made of granulated corneal and cleaning fluid makes a fine cleaner for these materials. Cover the soiled sections, leave on for a short time, then brush out thoroughly. This leaves no rings or streaks. When brushing silk, use a piece of velvet.

Q. What's the secret in mixing good plaster for a patching job?

A. Be sure to add the plaster to the water (not the water to the plaster). For some reason or other, this makes a much better mix.

Driver's Term Is Suspended; 2nd Man Held

A 20-year-old Wellsville man was given a suspended 10-day term in the Court Jail Monday after pleading guilty in Municipal Court to a charge of driving without an operator's permit.

The suspended term was handed Robert Harold Neville, 1822 Buckeye Ave., who was ordered by Judge Samuel M. Chertoff to pay the court costs.

Neville said he was driving Ernest Wayne Freeman of Glenmoor to his home "as a favor" when he was cited by the State Highway Patrol on Route 7 early Saturday morning.

Freeman, charged with permitting an unlicensed driver to operate his car, forfeited a $32.50 bond.

Joseph Moss, 503 Virginia Ave., also charged with permitting an unlicensed driver to operate his auto, was fined $50 and costs. He pleaded guilty.

After Judge Chertoff said he wanted Ernest Kelly, identified by Moss and police as the driver of the car, brought into court, police said a warrant has been issued for Kelly's arrest.

Kelly, known as "Mutt," was taken into custody by police and appeared before Judge Chertoff this morning on charges of driving without an operator's permit and willfully resisting and obstructing a police officer.

The court entered not guilty pleas for Kelly, whose address was listed as 803 High St., and both cases were continued until Monday morning when the defendant asked time to obtain counsel.

Judge Chertoff originally set bond at $200 but agreed to release the defendant on his own recognizance when Kelly, father of five children, said he was unable to post the amount.

Moss was arrested at 11:58 p.m. Sunday on Virginia Ave., police said.

Howard E. Hackney of Irondale forfeited a $57.50 bond on a charge of driving without a license. He was cited at 2:01 a.m. Saturday on Virginia Ave. Police said.

Shingler had a long struggle with this whooper before he could bring it aboard.

He is shown with his prize catch and he also caught one of the Sharks shown hanging on the rack in the background. Mr. and Mrs. Shingler spent a short vacation in Florida with his wife's parents Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kuhns.

Band Parents Set Tag Day

Plans for a Tag Day Sept. 21 were outlined at a meeting of the Wellsville Band Parents Monday night at Daw Junior High School.

Band members will conduct a house-to-house canvass and visit business places. Tom Nelson, president, conducted business.

Minutes of the Band Board were read. It was announced students serving in the concert band two years will receive a pin and those in the marching band will receive a letter. Previously a student had to serve four years.

Mrs. Goldie Steele, former ways and means chairman, gave a final report on the activities of the past term.

Band Parents Set Tag Day

Plans for a Tag Day Sept. 21 were outlined at a meeting of the Wellsville Band Parents Monday night at Daw Junior High School.

Band members will conduct a house-to-house canvass and visit business places. Tom Nelson, president, conducted business.

Mrs. Genevieve Heaton, ways and means chairman, said the teen-age record hops have resumed at MacDonald School and are successful. She said statements have been mailed to advertisers for the basketball and football programs.

It was pointed out the numbers on the football programs did not correspond with the numbers on the jerseys of the players. This was because new uniforms were received. This will be corrected in the next program.

Minutes of the Band Board were read. It was announced students serving in the concert band two years will receive a pin and those in the marching band will receive a letter. Previously a student had to serve four years.

Mrs. Goldie Steele, former ways and means chairman, gave a final report on the activities of the past term.

Next meeting is Oct. 14.

Cleveland Man Files Suit In County Crash

LISBON — A suit for $25,000 claiming injuries and loss of wages in an auto accident was filed in Common Pleas Court Monday by Dr. William E. Crew of Cleveland.

Woodrow M. Dennis, administrator of the estate of the late Floyd J. Dotson, of Salem R. D. 3 was named defendant.

Dr. Crew claims that on Nov. 12, 1962, he was a passenger in car which was struck by car driven by the deceased on Route 45, about two miles south of Salem.

Junior Editors Quiz on ROCKETS

QUESTION: Why are rockets fired to the east?

ANSWER: This is because of the direction of the earth's spinning motion. The boy at upper right is throwing a ball which gains speed by the force of this throw. Think of the earth as also throwing off something—a rocket—in the direction of its own spin, or counter-clockwise. Of course, the rocket gets great speed from being boosted up from the firing pad, but the earth's spin adds considerably to it. If fired from the equator, this added speed would amount to 1,050 miles an hour.

Suppose a rocket was fired in the opposite direction, to the west from Florida, or clockwise around the earth (1). There would be two forces—the rocket's speed and the earth's spin — meeting head on, as we suggest by opposing arrows. This would slow the rocket's speed. It is going to orbit the earth, high speed is essential to get enough centrifugal force to balance earth's gravity. Such speed is also necessary if, as in the lower picture, a rocket is to break away from earth's pull and contact a moon or planet.

FOR YOU TO DO: Spin a top. As you watch it think of a tiny rocket being fired from it in the direction of its spin. Wouldn't the spin of the top help a great deal in throwing the tiny rocket away from it?

Gary Davidson of Hamilton, Ont., Canada, wins the daily grand prize of a 20-volume set of World Book Encyclopedia for this question. Mail yours on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of The Review and you too may win a set.
